But first... FREE PLANTS!

Help us make room in the nursery for new material and take home some freebies! Quercus lobata (Valley Oak) in TP4s and Symphoricarpos albus (Snowberry) in TB5s are yours for the taking. Give us a call or email us if you're interested.

Now, see our picks for the best plants to attract hummingbirds to your garden!

Epilobium canum
(California fuschia)
1 gallon @ $11.95

- Pretty silvery foliage and bright red flowers make Epilobium an eye-catching feature in any garden. The hummingbirds can't get enough of it!
- Fast-growing and quick to establish itself, Epilobium canum will require little water and will spread around via rhizomes. Plant in full sun or partial shade for best results.

Monardella villosa
(coyote mint)
1 gallon @ $11.95

- Monardella villosa is perhaps best known for its minty fragrance, though its clusters of purple flowers are a treat for the passing hummingbird.
- If planted in a sunny or partially shady plot with well-draining soil, Monardella becomes a low maintenance and rewarding plant. The leaves can even be used to make tea.

Salvias Galore!

It's possible that when you think of hummingbird plants, your mind conjures up images of Salvias and for good reason! Their tubular flowers are the exact match for a hummingbird's long beak. The perfect duo!

Salvia mellifera
(black sage)
DP60 @ $15.95

Salvia leucophylla
(purple sage)
1 gallon @ $15.95

Salvia spathacea
(hummingbird sage)
1 gallon @ $24.95

Diplacus aurantiacus
(bush monkey flower)
1 gallon @ $11.95

- Beautifully bushy and dotted with lovely orange flowers, Diplacus aurantiacus is a staple for any native garden.
- Beloved by bees and hummingbirds alike, these plants are happiest in well-draining soil and full sun on the coast or partial shade inland.

Ribes Sanguineum
(pink-flowering currant)
DP40 @ $11.95

- We all love Ribes sanguineum for its delightful dangling clusters of pink flowers and dark little berries it produces in late summer. Though the berries are not very tasty for us humans, many birds love them- making Ribes sanguineum a near year-round bird magnet.
- Ribes sanguineum is quick growing and does best with little water and in either shade or sun.
